ABOUT NATIONAL LAW UNIVERSITY, JODHPUR

National Law University, Jodhpur [“NLUJ”] is one of India’s leading law schools. The University is a bold experiment in the sense that it is truly multidisciplinary. It endeavors to make a holistic effort to develop legal professional skills par excellence. Since its establishment, the University has endeavored to produce exceptional lawyers, and has aimed at challenging and pushing the existing boundaries of knowledge.

Keeping this objective of multidisciplinary holistic education in view and the growing needs of legal profession in the global context, various undergraduate, postgraduate, training courses and research programs have been designed in the University. The University takes the Bar Council directed mandatory subjects as the base and designs courses suitable for two undergraduate streams, namely: arts (B.A.) and business administration (B.B.A.).The University has designed its teaching method on various methodologies of teaching & learning process including co-operative teaching, case studies, lecture demonstration, group discussions, and self-conducted research.

Not only has the University excelled in traditional legal education, it also inculcates an innovative, hands-on approach to the study of emerging fields of legal discourse. One of the premier law universities of India, National Law University, Jodhpur, has undertaken consistent efforts to promote thinking, research and writing in the field of arbitration and its development, in both the international as well as Indian sphere.

ABOUT CARTAL

The Centre for Advanced Research & Training in Arbitration Law (CARTAL) is one of the various centres set up by National Law University, Jodhpur to promote research and scholarship in specialized fields of law. CARTAL seeks to empower students with a theoretical and practical understanding of arbitration. The advisory Board of the Centre is headed by Honorary Chairperson Prof. Martin Hunter, and includes Alexis Mourre, Emmanuel Gaillard, Fali S. Nariman, Gabrielle Kaufmann-Kohler, Gary B. Born, Lakshmi Jambholkar, Loukas Mistelis, Promod Nair, S.K. Dholakia and W. Michael Reisman.

The Centre provides a platform for academicians, professionals and students to interact and discuss contemporary issues of arbitration law. The mandate of the Centre is achieved by the organization of workshops, conferences and guest lectures to facilitate the understanding of such issues. In the past, these initiatives have allowed students to interact with experienced persons in the field, such as Professor

Martin Hunter and Professor Mark Wu, among others. These lectures covered a wide range of topics related to international commercial arbitration, investment treaty arbitration, as well as the domestic laws governing arbitration. The Centre also publishes the Indian Journal of Arbitration Law (“IJAL”), which is a bi-annual, open-access student-run journal. IJAL strives to combine theoretical aspects of arbitration with their practical relevance. This is achieved by including contributions from individuals with varied expertise in arbitration, whilst giving due importance to the work of academicians and students, who contribute innovative academic research. The journal endeavours to cover a wide range of contemporary issues in the field of arbitration. At the same time, the journal has also had theme-specific issues in the past, to explore the developments in a particular area in depth; such issues have focussed on investment treaty arbitration, development of Asian centres of arbitration and revisiting the Model Law

ABOUT THE ESSAY COMPETITION

With the increasing use of arbitration, especially in the sphere of commercial dispute resolution, it is but only apt and timely to encourage research and study in this area. As a wholly consensual dispute resolution mechanism, distinct from the public justice system embodied by national courts and most often shrouded by confidentiality, arbitration is has been rightly described as a privatised system of law. Therefore, its use in addressing claims arising from investment disputes, that with more often not, necessarily involve public law issues, has been continually seen with suspicion. However, this suspicion has not marred its popularity and in fact, it is this that led to Mr. Born and his team at Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr LLP, proposing the Bilateral Arbitration Treaty - “BAT”. The focus of this proposal is on bilateral treaties which would provide for international arbitration, under the UNCITRAL Rules, as a default mechanism for resolution of international commercial disputes between corporate parties.

This competition seeks to encourage law students to study the feasibility of the BAT Model, and address continuing concerns of the desirability of arbitration of public law claims, and whether the UNCITRAL Model Law can thereby be re-amended, keeping in mind the developments of the last decade. The competition has the gracious support and patronage of Mr. Gary B. Born himself, who is currently also the President of the Singapore International Arbitration Centre’s Court of Arbitration and an expert in international arbitration in his own right, having participated in more than 600 international arbitrations, including four of the largest ICC arbitrations and several of the most significant ad hoc arbitrations in recent history. He is consistently ranked as one of the leading practitioners in the field. He is also one of the only three lawyers in the world to hold the global “starred” status in Chambers’ rankings.
